Wallingford's Announces Distribution of Carlton Saw Chain

Press release July 2017

Wallingford's Inc. has recently been appointed as a new Carlton Harvester & Slasher chain distributor to serve customers all across North America.

Wallingford's Inc., with head office in Oakland, Maine has distribution facilities in the states of New Hampshire and Washington, and the Canadian provinces of Alberta, and Ontario.

Founded in 1975, Wallingford's is the largest wholesale distributor of logging supplies in North America serving nearly 3000 OEM, distributors, and dealers. John Wallingford, President of Wallingford's Inc stated, " We are very excited with this new cooperation between Blount and Wallingford's, as it unites two great brands, thus offering our customers one stop purchasing with incredible choices."

Carlton harvester saw chain has a Chamfer Chisel™ cutter for .404" pitch chain that features a unique three edge cutting surface design for excellent performance and higher cutting speeds. This chain also boasts an advanced chrome-plating process which yields maximum cutter sharpness that holds an edge in the most brutal conditions.

The special design of the chipper cutter on ¾" pitch chain has a fully rounded working corner and side plates for a large aggressive bite, easy sharpening, and edge holding durability combined with a tested and proven chassis that delivers superior strength and outstanding durability.
